The structures of health systems today are highly complicated, both for current users of health services and for future users. Health systems require individuals to adopt new roles – becoming informed about the services offered, being knowledgeable about their responsibilities and rights within the system, and being able to make decisions about their own health. At this point, then, it is important that people become “health-literate”. This is necessary because it is clear that changing health systems require improvements in the health literacy levels of society. The work initiated in the 1950’s in Turkey on “Health Literacy” entered the medical literature in 1974. Although there is a considerable volume of research and scientific studies that have been undertaken outside of Turkey on this subject, health literacy is a relatively new concept in Turkey and Turkish testing and research related to this concept are still inadequate. It is for this reason that it is difficult for the public to reach and access data on health literacy. This study reviews the scientific studies on health literacy in Turkey and evaluates the significance of the concept in terms of patient well-being and health professionals.

This volume includes the abstracts of both oral presentations and posters presented at the 14th Conference of the European Association for Health Information and Libraries (EAHIL), held in Rome in June 2014. EAHIL is an active professional association uniting and motivating librarians and information specialists working in medical and health science libraries in Europe. The association, which counts over 1000 members from about 30 European countries, encourages professional development, improves cooperation and enables exchanges of experience amongst its members. The EAHIL Conference, this year in its 14th edition, has an intense and stimulating scientific programme which analyses and discusses a variety of interesting topics such as technology, semantics, metrics, patients, economics and research. Plenary and parallel sessions, poster presentations, round tables and the sponsor sessions will contribute in stressing the importance of sharing information and building alliances between countries, institutions and professionals for a better cooperation in the profession and for the benefit of public health.

Key words: Libraries, Health information, Information science, Public health.

Il presente volume raccoglie gli abstract delle comunicazioni orali e dei poster presentati alla 14<sup>a</sup> Conferenza della European Association for Health Information and Libraries (EAHIL), che si terrà a Roma dall'11 al 13 giugno 2014. EAHIL è una associazione di professionisti bibliotecari e specialisti dell'informazione che operano nei diversi settori della medicina e delle scienze della salute in Europa. L'associazione, che conta più di 1000 membri provenienti da oltre 30 paesi europei, ha tra i suoi obiettivi quello di promuovere lo sviluppo professionale, la cooperazione e gli scambi di esperienze e competenze tra i propri membri. La Conferenza dell'EAHIL, giunta alla sua quattordicesima edizione, si svolgerà secondo un programma scientifico intenso e stimolante che analizzerà numerosi temi quali lo sviluppo tecnologico, la semantica, la metrica, i pazienti, gli aspetti economici e la ricerca. La Conferenza, che si articola, come di consueto, in sessioni plenarie e parallele, in tavole rotonde e in numerose presentazioni di poster e di sponsor intende richiamare l'attenzione su quanto sia fondamentale oggi promuovere attivamente lo scambio di informazioni e costruire alleanze tra paesi, tra istituzioni e tra singoli professionisti per una cooperazione maggiormente efficace e per la promozione della salute pubblica.
